What is veganism?

A vegan does not eat, wear, or use animal products. Veganism embodies the principles of non-violence and respect for others. It is positivity in action, making positive choices in our daily lives, choices that support just institutions and reject violent institutions, actions that promote equality and respect for life. It is making the decision, in everything we say and do, to no longer participate in the exploitation of others.

Every year, over 56 billion land animals are slaughtered for human consumption. These are innocent beings who value life just as much as you and I do. There is no moral difference between human, dog, cow, fish - all deserve the right to life. The least we can do for other animals is to go vegan.

It's easy, it's healthy, it's better for the environment, but most importantly, it's the morally right thing to do.
